All Blacks are going for a hattrick of wins, having won the 2011 and 2015 tournaments. They won't have it all their own way this time around as the gap between them and the rest appears to be closing. Teams like Wales, Ireland and South Africa are all on the rise.

Catch all the action Live and Loud across all of our screens.

131 QUEEN Street was originally the Victorian Club, which was the settling ground for local bookmakers and their elite clientele.

Notoriety came to this building on Wednesday April 21, 1976 at 12.05pm when six armed robbers barricaded the Victorian Club on level two, where bookmakers were preparing to "settle" with clients after a particularly profitable Easter racing carnival.

The haul was at least $6 million, possibly much more, and only took 11 minutes. Nobody was ever convicted for participating in the massive sting, Victoria's biggest at the time. However the money proved too hot to handle and all the major suspects are no longer with us, early scratchings from the race of their lives.

This momentous event became known as 'The Great Bookie Robbery.'

The Turf Sports Bar and Grill opened in March 2000, originally called 'The Turf Accountants'. 'The Turf Accountant' is the original licensed name for a bookie or bookmaker. This term is not common in Australia, it originated in the United Kingdom where Turf Accountants can still be found today operating on a professional level.
